

Po Leung Kuk Tang Yuk Tien College
Library
2014 – 2015
Book Sharing – Miss Wu Man

The First Phone Call from Heaven by Mitch Albom

We receive phone calls every day. We send Whatsapp messages every day. We browse through Facebook every day. We try to stay in touch with our family and friends who are living safe and sound. What if, one day, you pick up your mobile phone and hear the voice of someone you loved, but had already died. Would you believe? Would you doubt? Would you tell anyone?

This is exactly the dilemma faced by the residents living in Coldwater; and it is the story depicted in the book, The First Phone Call from Heaven.

A number of residents start receiving phone calls from the afterlife world. The callers are loved ones the residents have lost: a sister, a mother and a son. The callers are spreading the same message: to share with their living dears that heaven is a wonderful place which is full of love and death is nothing to be afraid of.

Opinions on the calls are divided. Some people think that the calls are miracles while someone is convinced that they are pranks. And it is your task to find out the truth by reading the book.

The impact of the book will vary from reader to reader. To me, the book reminds me of the importance of being grateful to people surround us and treasuring every second we breathe. Make full use of your life to leave an impact on the others. Instead of being doubtful about your ability, have faith in yourself and religion. This will definitely give you strength and inspire you.

The book is now available in the school library.