Roald Dahl Completely Unexpected Tales

'I particularly share this book to you because this book not only has a wide choice of action verb but also has some really good short stories elements used like foreshadowing element, the use of irony and how to end a story with a twist.' – Sharon from F.6C

When the story begins, it is about Mrs. Maloney who is just a very normal woman. However, things change when she finds out that her husband cheats on her. At that moment, she loses her senses, there she takes out a very special weapon and kills her husband. Can you have a guess on what the weapon could be? It is not a knife, not a gun or some toxic chemicals. It is the leg of a lamb. It is not just the leg of a lamb that makes this story special though, the even more surprising part is the way Mrs Maloney get the police officers destroy the weapon that the they themselves don't know that they become the ones damaging the evidence to catch the real criminal. And of course, in the end of the story, Mrs Maloney succeeds to avoid being caught by the police. The story ends with a satisfactory smile on her face. If you want to know how a woman can successfully make police officers destroy the weapon, grab a copy in the library and find it out.
